

TWO FOR THE ROW'D

ABOUT

Two for the Row'd is an Irish travel-media brand based in Carlow, set up in July 2025 and made up of the husband-and-wife duo, Nicola Rowan and Padraig Doyle.

Nicola holds a degree in Journalism and French, works as a French teacher, and presents the Power Surge rock classics radio show on Carlow FM. Padraig is a team leader with Bank of Ireland and host of the popular Carlow-based podcast "The How Is He?". Together, we combine storytelling expertise, education, broadcast experience, humour, and personality to bring destinations to life.

We create short-form destination reels that make travel feel achievable, enjoyable, and spontaneous by showing real locations through honest, practical, and visually engaging content. Our videos are humorous, relatable, and enthusiastic — offering viewers an authentic perspective on the places we explore.

We are one of the very few Irish travel couples producing personality-led travel reels, and our content resonates with audiences who value genuine experiences, Irish wit, and a sense of discovery. Whether we're highlighting local heritage, exploring hidden gems, or showcasing European adventures, our aim is simple:

To inspire journeys people can actually take.

WHAT WE OFFER

We create premium short-form content for destinations, hospitality providers, festivals, and experience-driven businesses — content designed to turn curiosity into visits and locations into must-see experiences.

Our reels are designed to showcase places in a way that feels real, accessible, and irresistible — combining storytelling, humour, and strong visuals to spark genuine travel intent.

We are also Brand Ambassadors for TourRadar, the global adventure travel marketplace. This partnership reflects our credibility within the travel space and our ability to inspire audiences to explore destinations both in Ireland and abroad.
